MOYLAN WOMAN REPORTS LOSS OF VALUABLE EARRING

Mrs. Mildred S. Olmsted Offers Reward For Return of Royal Jewel

Mildred Scott Olmsted, of Moylan, reported to Philadelphia police Tuesday that a valuable piece of her jewelry was missing.

The loss was reported by Mrs. Olmsted's secretary. She said it was an extremely valuable earring, part of the crown jewels of imperial Russia.

Mrs. Olmsted, Pennsylvania executive of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, was unable to estimate accurately the value of the jewel, but she was prepared to give a handsome reward for its return, her secretary said.

Mrs. Olmsted discovered her loss Monday and reported it to police, through her secretary, the following day.

All police districts were advised to be on the alert and a similar message was flashed to jewelers and pawnbrokers.

The secretary gave the following description of the earring, which is believed to have been lost in central Philadelphia.

"One single-screw adjustment earring, yellow gold triangle shape with enamel design, in center an oval setting with enamel flower small pearls in a circle, suspended design, on each side are set six by a link containing six larger pearls with one turquoise in center. This is part of the Russian royal collection. Value unknown insurance unknown."

Only routine action was taken by police, since the jewel was reported missing not stolen. However, if evidence points toward a robbery, a detective will be assigned to the case.

Mrs. Olmsted is the wife of Allen S. Olmsted, an attorney with offices on West Front street. For the past 25 years she has been a social worker and women's peace leader. She founded the social service department of Bryn Mawr Hospital and during the World War worked with the Y. M. C. A. in Paris.

Following the Armistice, Mrs. Olmsted spent several years in Berlin, returning to the United States in 1920. Since then she has made numerous trips to Europe. She has been Pennsylvania secretary of the Women's League since 1922.

RECENT GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kershaw and daughter, Miriam, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Raeer, of West Fourth street.

2 MEDIA HIGH GRADS LAUDED AT COLLEGE

Miss Jean Mathews and Charles Teer Commended For Student Activities

Two former Media High School students were warmly lauded this week for their college activities.

They are Miss Jean Mathews and Charles Teer. Both are students at West Chester State Teachers College.

Miss Mathews is the daughter of Mr. R. L. Mathews. She was graduated from Media High in 1936. A report from the college press board states that she was the active "center" of the Girl's Hockey Team and a participant in many other campus activities.

Miss Mathews, a senior in the Health Education Curriculum, is also a member of the Women's Student Cooperative Association.

Teer was graduated in 1938 from Media High. He is a sophomore in the Music Education Curriculum at the college and recently participated in a Student Recital which was held in the Philips Memorial Library of the college.

Teer, who is a member of the campus Young Men's Christian Association, played Beethoven's piano movement, Allegro Sonato Opus 14 No. 1.

Fall Through Skylight Sends Man to Hospital

Missed Footing at Entrance to Apartment, Plunges 18 Feet Into Store

Two big surprises were dished out this week on West State street.

The first occurred when Joseph Mays attempted to enter his place of residence, an apartment over the new Acme Self-Service Store.

The second came when store employes opened for business Wednesday morning and found Mays lying semi-conscious amid cans of vegetables.

No eye-witness version of how Mays happened to meet his accident was available, but it is believed he missed his footing and fell through the skylight.

Apparently, Mays climbed to his second floor apartment by the rear stairway and walked through a narrow opening between the apartments to the side door.

The skylight was installed when the store was rebuilt several weeks ago and Mays, in reaching for the door, evidently lost his balance and plunged 18 feet to the floor below, striking a wooden display in his fall.

He was found yesterday by two clerks who had arrived early to open the store. Mays is believed to have been unconscious for several hours before his plight was discovered.

The ambulance of the Media Fire Company was summoned and Mays was removed to the Media Hospital where he was found suffering from a fracture of the right ankle.

The unusual aspects of the accident caused the firement to believe that the call was the work of a practical jokester and it required several minutes of explanation by the clerk to convince the ambulance driver that an injured man was really lying on the store floor.

EMMA J. GRUBB DIES AT AGE OF 90

Mother of Media Business Man Buried Wednesday Afternoon

The funeral of Mrs. Emma J. Grubb, 90, was held yesterday afternoon from the Rigby Funeral Home, West State street. Interment was in the Media cemetery.

Mrs. Grubb passed away Sunday evening after a lingering illness. She was born in Chester county but lived for the greater part of her life in Media. She was the widow of Theodore Grubb.

Mrs. Grubb was a practical nurse and until her health failed two years ago she had led a full life, serving many families in Media and taking part in the affairs of the First Baptist Church.

Until February 4 when she entered a local convalescent home, Mrs. Grubb had resided at the Graysdale Apartments, Second and Jackson street.

She is survived by a son, Albert P. Grubb a well-known civic figure and business man of Media, and one daughter, Jennie Velotte, of Williamsport.

'BLACKOUT' SENDS TRUCK INTO AUTO

Lights Fail On Commercial Vehicle Causing Driver To Lose Control

John Green and John Rolfe both agreed this week that Europe's blackouts are a hazardous proposition. Their attitude was brought about by an accident early Sunday morning.

Green, a Negro who lives in Forsythe, Georgia, was driving south on Monroe street, when the lights on his truck began to act rather irresolutely.

The lights flickered once, went [illegible] then flashed on again. The shadowy performance left Green in a shaken condition but he continued rolling along.

Several minutes later the lights gave an encore. They went out, went on and then died permanently.

Green lost control of the truck and it careened toward Rolfe's house at 218 North Monroe street.

Whether it was lucky or otherwise, Rolfe had his car parked directly in front of his home and the truck crashed into it. The car was badly damaged but it probably saved the house from expensive harm and the sleepers a severe shock.

After knocking Rolfe's auto onto the pavement, the truck with Mr. Green grimly clinging to the steering wheel, eyes tightly closed, bounced across the sidewalk and came to a halt between the house custody and held him until verification of his identity arrived from and a tree.

Media police took Green into Georgia.

COUNCIL RATIFIES ZONING CHANGE

Widen Business District To Permit Establishment of Tea Room

Borough Council last Thursday night adopted a change in the zoning ordinance, which widens the classified business district.

The modification makes the east side of Jackson street, from Front to Second, a part of the business zone.

Council ratified the change after request had been made by property owners in that section. The Misses Elizabeth and Matilda Sprogell, who formerly conducted a school on the northeast corner of Front and Jackson streets, asked Council to take action on their request so that a business firm might be established on the property.

Council studied the request and after fulfilling the necessary legal obligations an open hearing was held on the matter last Thursday evening.

As no protests were lodged at the hearing, Council voted to permit the change.

The Sprogell sisters advanced their plea to Council so that a tea room may open on the site.

7 Year Old Student Succumbs to Burns

Upper Providence Youngster Loses Life When Flaming Debris Ignites Clothes In Front of His Home

A gust of wind and a piece of burning rubbish were responsible Sunday for the death of a 7-year-old Upper Providence Township boy.

He was William Hipple, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hipple, of 1 First avenue. The young victim was a second-grade student at the Sandy Bank public school.

The tragedy occurred Saturday morning in front of the Hipple residence. William's uncle, Jesse L. Hipple, a prominent political figure in Upper Providence, who lives with his brother, had just cleaned out the cellar and was burning the debris in a barrel.

The boy had approached the flames several times and was warned away by his uncle, when a sudden gust of wind lifted a piece of the burning rubbish from the receptacle and carried it to the street.

William ran to the spot and eagerly began to stomp out the blaze with his feet. The flames ignited his clothes and, driven by a stiff breeze, turned the youngster's body into a blazing torch in a few minutes.

The flames were extinguished by wrapping William in a rug. Accompanied by his mother, Florence, he was removed to the Media Hospital in the ambulance of the Media Fire Company.

Death occurred at 3 a. m., Sunday. Funeral services were held yesterday for the boy who was an outstanding student at the Sandy Bank school.

Media Postmaster Predicts Record-Breaking Xmas Mail

All Indications Point To 1939 As Biggest Year, He Declares; Early Shipments Top Last Year's Corresponding Period By About 10 per cent.; Foreign Mail Lags Because of War

There's never a dull moment at the Media post office these days. And right now it doesn't seem likely there will be one until after Christmas.

For according to Postmaster Mat Fox, this is going to be the biggest Christmas for the post office in the building's history.

"We are ahead of the corresponding period for last year by about 10 per cent," Mr. Fox said. "And all indications point to 1939 as the biggest year."

Did Mr. Fox mean the biggest year in the past decade?

"No, indeed," he responded. "This looks like it's going to be the biggest year since we moved into this building on November 11, 1918.

"Packages have been coming in to the parcel post department steadily and in greater numbers every day," Mr. Fox said.

Although domestic mail will probably set a new record, the volume of shipments to Europe has declined perceptibly in recent months and overseas mail lags behind last year's figures, the postmaster stated.

"Outgoing foreign mail is not as heavy as in 1938," he said. "This is the result of war influence," he declared, "as people are undoubtedly are timid about entrusting valuables to foreign service."

In order to efficiently handle the holiday mail increase, the Media post office has added 24 extra clerks and carriers to its regular personnel.

Retired Postman Starts on 4th Long Trip Since 1935

John McKniff Has Covered 10,000 in 4 Years

If there's something new in southwest United States, John McKniff doesn't intend to let it escape his notice. He started yesterday on another trip to that section, his second visit within the past four years and his fourth long-distance expedition since he stopped working in 1935.

Not only will Mr. McKniff inspect the vast state of Texas but he also has encircled Cuba on his map. He boarded a bus at 69th Street Terminal yesterday with his ultimate destination being Houston and Havana.

When he returns to Media, spring will be injecting green life into the borough fields and the cold, biting winds that now sweep along borough streets will be chilling memories.

Not until April again appears on the calendar will he resume abode here. Meantime, the retired postman will enjoy life with his two sons, John and William.

Havana and Houston Destination of Media Man

It was the urge to see them that compelled Mr. McKniff to pack his bags and don travelling robes. One son, John, is a Catholic priest stationed at a Cuban parish. He spent four years in the Philippine Islands and in 1938 Mr. McKniff went to the sunny slopes of California to visit him.

William is a business man, working in the Houston office of a Baltimore firm. He's a former track star who created many records while jogging around the cinders for West Philadelphia Catholic High School and the University of Pennsylvania.

The territorial differences in their locations supplied Mr. McKniff with a motive for visiting the two cities. "They happen to be scattered," he said, "so the only thing I can do is include the cities on my trip."

Mr. McKniff took up his duties as letter-carrier in 1899, and for 36 years retained that position. Four years ago he retired — but kept right on travelling.

He estimates that since 1935 he has covered almost 10,000 miles. And when he comes home in April he intends to save more money for future travels.

RECRUIT SIGNS WITH CO. M

Company M, 111th Infantry of Media, added a new man to its ranks at Tuesday's drill. He is Robert Morris of Media. This brings the total enlistment to 66.

Private Morris will devote three drill periods to the "School of a Soldier." He will be given instructions as to preparation of a full field pack and he will earn the facings and courtesy to the colors and officers. He then will be ready to take his place in a designated squad.

Major Joseph Reilly, commander of the 3rd Batallion of the 111th Infantry made his quarterly visit to the Media Armory last Thursday. Major Reilly reported favorably on the recent encampment at Camp Dix.

A new firing range has just been completed at the Armory. It is built in a sound-proof room in the basement. This gives each man the opportunity of receiving a qualified machine gunner's medal for making a required number of points on a problem target.

If you make your soup starting from scratch, so to speak, you will want a soup-bone, and if you are using a meat stock, and all the vegetables that furnish the savory, appetizing touch.

Hedgerow Resumes Plays On Dec. 26

The week of December 18th at the Hedgerow Theatre in Moylan-Rose Valley is given over to necessary reconditioning of equipment, and to rehearsals of the coming year's productions.

This year activities at the playhouse make it impossible for the Californians and Texans in the Hedgerow Company to visit their families at Christmas. The full personel is on call for the repertory of holiday plays to be presented in Rose Valley beginning the day after Christmas, December 26th, with Milne's "The Romantic Age."

Ease the worries of that Christmas dinner by buying from the dependable merchants who are now advertising in the Media News.

LECTURE No. 13

By HAROLD W. ARNDT

At the end of the Mississippian Period there was a pronounced uplift of the whole continent and a withdrawal of the shallow seas from the interior, except from a few exceptionally low areas in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas. The initial folding of the mountains formed from parts of the southern and western troughs, corresponding to the beginning of the Hercynian movements in Europe, took place at this time.

The subsidence of the interior basin, and of most of the troughs, was soon resumed and continued irregularlly through Pennsylvanian time. Canada seems to have been generally above sea-level during the Pennsylvanian Period, but conditions in the United States were parallel to those which have already been described in Europe, except that the directions were reversed. In Europe the Russian Sea lay east of a great lowland area on which coal measures were deposited. In the United States, a shallow sea law in the western portion of the interior basin and the western trough and at times was broadly connected with the Pacific Ocean.

The coal measures and swamps occupied the eastern portion of the interior basin, except for higher area like the Cincinnati-Nashville Arch and the rising Ozard Mountains. At times, the lowlands and swamps extended westward beyond the present Mississippi River, across Iowa, Missouri and Arkansas and into Kansas, Oklahoma and Central Texas. At other intervals, a rise in level of the Kansas sea, or an eastward tilting of the basin, would extend marine waters eastward, sometimes nearly or quite to the foot of the eastern borderland, and bury the accumulated swamp material under marine sediment. Then a retreat of the sea would permit another development of swamps on the newly exposed lowlands.

Throughout these oscillations the basin was in general subsiding; hence the "coal measures" in the eastern portion of the area (Pennsylvania and West Virginia) are several thousand feet in thickness, while the marine Pennsylvania strata in the western plains are but a few thousand feet thick.

The Permian Period in North America, as in the eastern hemisphere, was a time of continental elevation and of mountain folding and uplift. The Kansas sea continued from Pennsylvanian through early Permian time around all sides of the islands formed by the rising ancestral Rocky Mountains. The uplift gradually restricted the sea, draining it from most of the region, but closing off from the open oceans considerable bodies of water in some of the lower areas. The waters of the enclosed basins were vaporated to dryness as were those of the Permian Basin at the same time, with the deposition of thick beds of gypsum and salt in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and New Mexico. By the middle Permian, about the culmination of the late Paleozoic or Appalachian revolution, all the present land areas of North America were above sea-level. The new mountains were undergoing rapid erosion, while great thicknesses of continental deposits, mostly red-beds, were accumulating on the lower plains around them.

The early Devonian climate was evidently of variable type, which characterizes the great revolutions, but fairly moderate and uniform conditions appear to have prevailed from Middle Devonian time until near the end of the Mississippian Period, when there was a lowering of the temperature and some ice formations. The widespread coal forming swamps of Pennsylvanian time are generally considered as good evidence of a return to more equable temperatures and of a moist climate. The Permian climate was certainly one Certain regions show a succession of glacial and interglacial epochs, of extremes and of great changes. and others evidently suffered under a dry and presumably hot climate.

A P. S. TO CONSERVATIVES

In America a man is either a liberal or a conservative. His classification depends upon his attitude towards the other fellow's money.

If a man has no compunctions about spending someone else's dollars he's a liberal.

The fellow whose money is being spent usually makes an inquiry into the matter. He's denounced as a conservative by the liberal.

In turn, the conservative denounces the liberal.

Back and forth across the battlefield, which is the press and radio, fly the verbal hand grenades. The attack is so profuse and varied the average man and woman hesitates to align with either combatant.

Until recently we were one of the neutrals. Liberals and conservatives seemed of the same hue. We couldn't see how democracy was endangered by extravagance or thriftiness.

Now we are leaning toward the conservatives. The preparations for repaving Baltimore pike brought about this inclination.

A nine-inch layer of concrete will be spread over the road this spring, and this has made necessary certain precautions.

For example, there are water mains beneath Baltimore pike and they've been in use over a long period.

If the pipes needed repairs or replacement after the new surface was laid, a large chunk of taxpayer's money would be conscripted for the work.

But this is most improbable now. The water mains were tested and where the system was weak the pipes were strengthened or new ones installed.

That, to us, proves the difference between a liberal and a conservative.

Borough Council could have increased its prestige one-hundred fold by failing to consider the mains a part of the project on Baltimore pike. Then when pipes started leaking Council would have been able to hand out several jobs and tell the citizens about how it was guarding their interests and aiding the progress of Media.

Such maneuvering is the ultimate in political astuteness. Simply disregard the matter of money and its source. Spend and spend even though it hurts the taxpayer. He won't protest, for who can shamelessly deny his neighbor the right to earn a living? Wastefulness, on this basis, is ajudged a virtue.

Even the liberals must agree that Borough Council proved the merits of conservatism with its foresight. And some day, when extravagance alights on the liberals' roofs in the form of burdensome taxes, the liberals are going to squeeze into conservative's coats.

The conservatives need only maintain their defensive positions. The liberals can't keep scaling the hills of debts they have created. Pretty soon they'll surrender their guns and ask the conservatives to take over. This will happen when the liberals are called upon to carry some of the weight of their wild spending.

ANOTHER ADVANCEMENT

Reconstruction of Baltimore pike through Media is scheduled to start in April. This project marks another commendable advancement in the march of Media.

The rate at which improvements are being and have been made to Media undoubtedly stamps this borough as a municipality infected with the healthy germ of progressiveness.

Not so very long ago there were a number of decrepit and idle buildings wasting away. Today two of them have been transformed into productive structures of beauty unparelleled in the history of modern Media. And three more are about ready to begin life.

Vigorous growth can be noted easily in the business section. New enterprises and the expansion of established institutions indicate that Media has barely touched the virgin vein of its possibilities.

With impetus supplied by one or two projects, Media's business body has moved forward in search of new fields to develop.

While the borough has always struggled with its problems and obstacles, only the past decade has brought forth tangible evidence of a growing municipality.

The list of better things now owned by Media has an extensive scope. It ranges from big real estate developments to government. Every borough facet has felt the surge.

What follows the improvement to Baltimore pike? No one can say, except to state that Media will continue to better itself.

A NEW ERA

The light in which Francis B. Kaeslin, Chairman of the Police Committee, has placed Ordinance 234 is very powerful.

Its glare tends to frighten the cynics who didn't believe the traffic situation could be remedied by invoking an Ordinance.

Maybe their attitude will change now that Mr. Kaeslin made his statement that there will be no fixing of tickets. His words were surcharged with an implication that Council has found favor with an even stricter method of enforcing traffic regulations.

At last Media appears on its way out of the woods of vehicular congestion.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Rodenboh

The funeral of Mr. Susanna Y. Rodenboh who passed away suddenly Friday morning was held Monday afternoon from her late residence on West Baltimore Pike. She was 85 years of age. Interment was in Greenmount cemetery, West Chester.

SCHOOL BOARD O. K.'s LUNCHES

Lima Woman's Club May Continue To Serve Students

Mrs. Elton P. Richards, Mrs. Charles Van Albert, Mrs. Charles L. Smith and Mrs. W. H. Saudill, of the Lima Woman's Club, were granted permission by the Middletownship Township School Board to continue serving hot lunches in the Lima School.

The lunches have been served to the children of the Lima School for several weeks, and the school nurse reports that some of the children have gained between two and twelve pounds.

The money raised by the concert given last year is being divided between the Lima and Rooseelt Schools. Parkmount School is small and when the necessary provisions are made, can be handled from the Lima School. The committee is working faithfully to serve each school and are awaiting for the decision of the school board to go ahead to make these lunches a permanent part of the three schools.

Mrs. Harry F. King has a sum of money, approximately $100, from the amateur show which she gave, which is also to be used for the project.

MEDIA MAN HONORED

Harry A. Lovener, of Media, has been elected to the board of governors of the Delaware County Pharmaceutical Association.

Commissioners Stress Need For More Cooperation

With inquiries from city and county officials in other parts of the state indicating that widespread interest has been aroused by Delaware County's drive to curb short weight coal sales during the present heating season, the Commissioners of Delaware County yesterday cited the need for continued cooperation of the fuel-buying public in the movement.

"While activities of the Sealers of Weights and Measures are showing definite results, our men alone cannot rid this territory of all those who cheat the householder at every opportunity," the Commissioners declared in a statement issued from their office at Media. "We know that a number of dishonest coal distributors are avoiding Delaware County these days, but there will be no let-down in the campaign. It is gratifying to know that the general public is wide awake to the importance of the work being done."

Arthur C. Throne, County Engineer in charge of the Weights and Measures Bureau, also pointed out yesterday that the campaign to insure full weight deliveries of coal had a real "dollars and cents" value to coal consumers everywhere. Inspectors of the Bureau operate in all parts of the County, and trucks of local fuel merchants and of Philadelphia companies are halted and weighed the same as those of coal truckers from other counties.

"Responsible merchants have a vital interest in the work of the Sealers at all times," Throne stated. "As a rule, the individual or the company that has an established place in a community works on the principle that any step which safeguards customers is beneficial. Employees of a coal dealer with an established reputation naturally have a greater incentive to see to it that their fuel loads are correctly weighed, and that their delivery slips are in order every time."

SET RECORD

This And That

By RUDY

Pick Ups From Last Week . . . Back to that item concerning the Sunday morning Drug Store quarterbacks. It seems from what one of my eavesdroppers clarkgabled, they erected a $75,000 stadium, issued bonds for it, perfected an unscored upon Media eleven, sponsored a baseball team for the National League, a football team for the American League, and agreed that Media should not discontinue playing Chester High until Media has won 21 consecutive games . . .

You Guess—I Know . . . . Who is the attractive Miss from out of town, the initial of her first name being G who is quite the topic of conversation between two Media High grads of a few years back? . . . Do you remember the saying a few years ago, "Foot Loose and Fancy Free?" . . . We would suggest a change in that for W. D. who has recently adopted a new coat lapel insignia, and we offer, as a suggestion, the new phrase "Screw Loose and Advertise" . . . For reasons unknown, it seems a certain local U-singer has requested his friends, who make their lounging quarters on the School Pharmacy corner to address him as Mr. Dead End . . . Is it love at first sight that has one of S. Orange Sts'. handsome K's going daffy over a Philly damsel? . . . No. 1 Joke Cracker of the week . . . Nels Henry of Bortondale . . . Now that football is over, the M. H. S. band won't be out so much, and a certain Assistant Drum Majorette and her man-about-town will have to use the basketball games as their alibis . . . Wonder what the attraction is on West Baltimore Pike that has Yours Truly going around in a fog, day in and day out?

Here's The Latest Chatter . . . According to a very reliable source one of Media's No. 1 gigoloes will middle aisle it this winter . . . Wonder who the lucky girl will be? . . . Betcha didn't know that there's a Frank Buck in this man's town . . . And he's plenty big, too. . . . A stage whisper to G. B.: Be sure that he has enough gas in the car next time . . . Like a certain popular brand of coffee, A. E. H. of W. Baltimore avenue, is always dated . . . To the three lads in a blue sedan. Better lay off that dame, or friend hubby ketchum wise . . . Trowl-faced John wishes to advise all his friends that he's through playing pinochle . . . The boys from the sticks have been too much for him.

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by 'Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 17, 1939. The Golden Text is: "All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee. They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom, and talk of thy power" (Psalms 145:10, 11).

Among citations comprising the Lesson-Sermon is the following: "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth. He gathereth the waters of the sea together as an heap; he layeth up the depth in storehouses . . . The counsel of the Lord standeth forever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations" (Psalms 33:6, 1, 11).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God creates and governs the universe, including man. The universe is filled with spiritual ideas, which He evelves, and they ade obedient to the Mind that makes them . . . SPORT SNATCHES

By ROBERT A. THALETE

With the memory of last year's tingling race so fresh it seems like yesterday, Media Borough Basketball League prepares for another season. Tentative plans schedule the opener for next week.

A meeting has been called for Monday evening when all details are expected to be straightened and the teams given the go-ahead signal for what is hoped to be a scramble as pulsating as in 1938-1939 when three teams occupied the uppermost berth.

Andrew Jackson offered a bit of advice long ago and nobody has ever forgotten. At that time Andrew had been greatly honored by the people of these United States. They voted him into the presidency with orders to straighten out the country.

Andrew did that. He commenced by giving the bounce to every office holder who thought Andrew's opponent was a much better person. The squawk that followed sent ripples along the Pacific ocean and ruffled the pine trees of Maine.

Andrew's retort was short and conclusive and it hit the nail smack on the noggin. "To the victor," Andrew advised, "belongs the spoils."

Amen, said those who were about to accept Federal employment. And ever since then the same hard-fisted method has been retained until it is now a national institution.

So now the Media Hurricanes are about to consume the spoils of a great season. Maybe the Hurricanes did lose three games, but that doesn't detract any prestige from the two lacings they handed Spring City.

Spring City suffered a pair of losses this season and both times it was the Hurricanes that slapped their cheeks. The Spring City club flaunted several former college greats. And when the games ended they were still former greats, for the Hurricanes played like a pack of wounded tigers.

Conquests like that call for celebrating. This evening the Hurricanes' brain-trust pool their gray matter and then decide when, where and how to hold a banquet.

Some pumpkins, our Hurricanes.

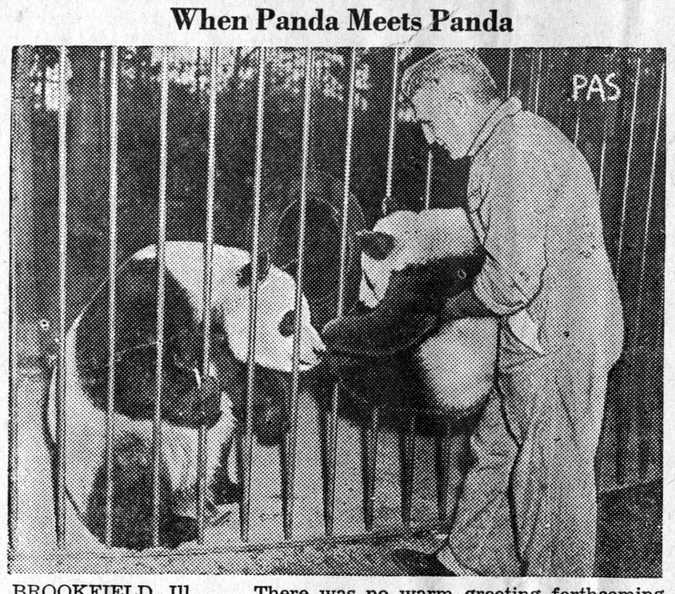
FIRE DAMAGES AUTOMOBILE

Fire damaged an automobile at Olive street and South avenue Sunday evening shortly after seven o'clock.

The vehicle, which was owned by L. M. Pierucci, of Upper Darby, was badly damaged by the flames which started under the hood.

The blaze was extinguished by the Media Fire Company. The car was unoccupied.

When Panda Meets Panda



BROOKFIELD, Ill. . . . There was no warm greeting forthcoming when the new giant baby panda arrived at the Brookfield Zoo today to provide company for Mei-Mei, by now a privileged guest at the zoo. The 60-pound black and white ball of fur, last of the animal world's leading showmen permitted to leave West China, arrived in Chicago today from its native habitat as a gift to the zoo, only place in the world to have two pandas, there being only three others in captivity.

Picture Shows Problem Faced By Job-Seekers

On Wednesday morning a play was presented to the students of Media High School depicting some of the problems encountered by high school graduates in their quest for jobs.

The play entitled "Easy Payments" was produced by the class in Applied Mathematics, a new subject for Seniors in the high school. Dallas E. Brubaker, teacher of the class wrote and directed the play hoping that it would portray some of the problems considered in the class.

The play was a class project, including typing the play sheets from manuscript, collecting scenery and other effects, and giving helpful criticism in practice during class periods.

The cast of characters was as follows: Sue, a widow, Pearl Jensen; Mary, her younger sister, Irma Jackson; Lizzie, the mother, Mary Fiore; Henry, the father, Hamilton Horn; Tom, the only son, Rollin Jones; John, their uncle, William Guyton; Hattie, their aunt, Margaret Furman; Joe, Mary's fiance, William Brady.

Miss Margaret K. Cheyney of the Art Department gave her csual splendid cooperation in making up the characters.

HEALTH HINTS

By PHILIP JAISOHN, M. D.

There are several forms of anemia and we know the cause of most of them, except the type known as hypochromatic anemia. This type is more common than others, it seldom produces any acute or alarming symptoms. The patient, without an apparent reason, feels tired, unwilling or unable to concentrate on any work, often irritable and pessimistic. There rarely is any pain, except some vague transitory aches in some parts of the body. The appetite is usually poor, bowels sluggish, and the tongue coated. Microscopic examination of the blood shows a low hemoglobin level and the cell count reduced in number. Administration of iron supplemented with liver extract and supporting diet are the usual method of treatment. It is generally designated as a run down condition, but it is not a scientific term. The recent study of red cells in the blood vessels sheds a new light. It was found that red cells rarely disintegrate while they travel along in the arteries unless the blood serum contains some toxic matter which has either been introduced into circulation from outside or generated in some organ of the body. However, they do disintegrate in the veins when the venous circulation is obstructed or retarded. They swell up and burst in the veins sometimes in large numbers. This fact leads us to believe that poor or irregular venous circulation is one of the causes of hypochromatic or secondary anemia and in treating this condition, this condition should be born in mind.

Some remarkable results have been obtained in treating mental diseases by insulin shocks but this mode of treating it is rather dangerous in the hands of those who are not familiar with the technic and proper supervision. Dr. Speidel of the University of Virginia reports that metrazol or a camphor derivative is a safer drug than insulin in producing shocks in the central nervous system. Metrazol like insulin, produces shocks to the nervous system but only to the nerve endings in the brain. The fine nerve endings degenerate after having been subjected to repeated shocks, then later new endings develop to take the place of degenerated ones. When a new set of nerve endings are formed the psychic functions change into normal condition. It is too early to evaluate the merits of metrazol for the treatment of mental diseases but the results so far obtained give us an encouragement to the hope that we may have now a better weapon with which to deal with this form of human misery.

All human behavior is the external demonstration of what is going on in the mind so to understand other people, study of their minds is necessary in order to interpret their behavior correctly. True, we can form an opinion of a person by his behavior but we do not always construe it correctly, especially when the behavior is designed to hide the inner motive. We can build a much better world in which we can all dwell in peace and harmony if we know more about human psychology. The lack of this essential knowledge is the cause of most of the troubles that confront the present world.

Some people are alarmed about their joints making a crackling sound when they are bent or extended. In most cases it does not signify anything wrong, although we do not know exactly why they make the noise. If there is no pain or swelling in the joint just consider it as a matter of no importance. Some times the space between the joints contain small particles known as rice bodies, which make crackling noise when they are rubbed together. These particles seldom cause any trouble unless they are very numerous or form a mass which produces pressure symptoms on the tendons or nerves. In such cases the offending particle should be removed by surgery.

DON'T FEAR OLD AGE

Let me tell you the inspiring story of the artist who gave us "The Last Judgement"—one of the most famous paintings in the world. This man was also an architect, and he wanted to help rebuild St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome.

In my files, I have a letter from my friend Jean Bordeaux, in Los Angeles, a letter so full of inspiration that I'm going to quote from it:

"Look at the list of people who have accomplished splendid things in their old age. Ponder this list—

"Cato learned Greek at 80. Sophocles wrote the immortal 'Oedipus Rex' at 81.

"Goethe completed 'Faust,' the crowning achievement of his life, at 80.

"Anatole France, the great author, said he got tired of reading translations of famous Latin books, so he began the study of Latin at 73.

"William E. Gladstone was Prime Minister of England when he was 84.

"Alfred Lord Tennyson wrote his famous poem ('Crossing the Bar') in his 83rd year."

"Verdi, the famous Italian composer, wrote 'Ave Maria' when he was 85.

And when he was 71, he achieved the ambition of his life: he was then appointed chief architect for the rebuilding of St. Peter's. Remember he was 71. Most men think of retiring at that age; but Michelangelo thought of it as the time to attempt the biggest thing in his life.

Day after day, and year after year he worked, driven by a consuming desire to finish it before death came. His health failed; he had gout and gallstones, but he would not let pain stop him. His hands became so gout-ridden that he could hardly hold a chisel, but he kept on working.

Finally he could not walk to his work, so he was straddled on a horse which was led through the street to where he could oversee the building of the dome. His doctors begged him not to continue, but he said, "I must finish it." Finally, one day on the scaffold the grand old man asked the workmen to help him down. When a physician arrived, he had a raging fever.

The next morning, he asked to be put on his horse, and tried to rise, but the doctor was firm. Then he asked to be moved to the window where he could see the dome.

He grew weaker during the day. The next day he died — lacking but twelve days of being 90 years old! And there was the Dome of St. Peter's to show for it — one of the most majestic sights in the world.

We should all grow as we get older, keep active, keep doing things, get new interests. They help to prevent mental ol dage, at least. For you are really old when you think and talk of what you have done, not of what you are going to do.

This Week in Washington

Washington — With the organization by the foremost Republican leaders of New York State of a "Dewey-for-President" campaign for delegates, and the opening speech in that campaign made by the district Attorney of New York County in Minneapolis, the three-cornered battle for the Republican Presidential nomination is at last fully under way.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg's organization committee has been actively at work for several weeks, proclaiming him as Michigan's favorite Son, and issuing impressive "literature" in his behalf, with almost all of Michigan's foremost Republicans, from the Governor down, as signatories.

Senator Taft's personal campaign in the West, which has taken him and his politically-able wife to the Pacific Coast, has also been going on since the extra session of Congress ended. It has the blessing of most of the Ohio party leaders, including Governor Bricker, who was being talked of as a Presidential possibility himself before he declared in favor of "Bob" Taft.

Between Three Men

As Washington political observers view the prospects from this point in time and space, the real battle for the nomination is between those three men. Each of them, it is expected, will go to the convention with a practically solid block of delegates from his home state. Dewey's will be the largest, Taft's the next largest and Vandenberg's third. Each will have a considerable number of delegates from other states, but each will have enough backing to be an extremely powerful factor in the final decision.

Only one man can get the first prize, and he is not always the candidate who has the greatest strength short of a majority.

Observers with long memories are harking back to the Republican convention of 1920, when it seemed a foregone conclusion that the nominee would be either General Leonard Wood or Governer Frank Lowther of Illinois. The convention became deadlocked and when the nomination of either of the leaders became utterly hopeless, the effort to find a candidate who would not be too objectionable for both Wood and Lowther to agree on him resulted in the selectin of the darkest "dark horse" in the convention, Warren Harding.

Having that episode in mind, some astute lookers-on are beginning to look over the "dark horses" now in the Republican field. A three-way deadlock is less likely than one involving only two candidates, but it is possible; and there are many Republicans who have their lightning-rods in readiness in case they might be useful.

The present outlook is that many states will send delegations for "favorite sons" who will have no expectation of getting the plum, but whose followers could be traded to advantage to support the likeliest winner. New Hampshire's Gov. Bridges, Massachussett's Gov. Saltonstall, Rhode Island's Gov. Vanderbilt, Pennsylvania's Gov. James, are among those who are expected to have considerable numbers of delegates if not solid state blocks, when the convention convenes.

Delegation for Landon

Kansas is expected to send a solid delegation for former Governor Alf Landon, who will be remembered as the Republican candidate for President in 1936.

Representative James W. Wadsworth of New York, and Representative Bruce Barton of the same state are most often spoken of as possibilities in case it should turn out that Mr. Dewey cannot get the nomination and the New York leaders should be unwilling to throw their tremendous strength to either Vandenberg or Taft.

Hovering over the whole Republican picture is the shadow of former President Hoover. Mr. Hoover has no organization working for his nomination, he has made no public declaration one way or the other, and those in his personal confidence assert that he has no ambition or desire to run for President again.

But his recent frequent contacts with political leaders all over the nation, his public addresses and magazine articles and the quite general and definite growth in Mr. Hoover's personal popularity, and the public's respect for his opinions, look to some of the Washington observers as preparing the way for his selection to lead the Republican party once more, whether as the result of a deliverate effort on his part or as the result of a deadlock from which no other way could be found to which the convention would agree.

Swinging Toward Opposition

All of the concern, which almost amounts to excitement, about the next Republican convention, is based upon the belief that the pub- Opposition party, and that the right man withthe right appeal whom the convention will nominate has a better than 50-50 chance lic's mind is swinging toward the to defeat any candidate whom the Democrats may put up. There are many observers here who think that does not hold good if Mr. Roosevelt runs again, but the number who think he will not ask for a third term is increasing.

As among the three leading Republican candidates, Senator Vandenberg is the first choice of those who know him best through their association with him for ten years in the Senate. But this idea is partly based upon the fact that Mr. Dewey, who still ranks first in polls of Republican voters, has not yet developed his ideas of national and international policy in public addresses. He has just begun to do that.

COMMUNITY CENTRE OFFERS SERVICES

Wants To Co-ordinate Christmas-giving And Avoid Duplication

The Community Centre of Media and vicinity is anxious this year to coordinate Christmas-giving in the community. A planned and coordinated Christmas ought to avoid duplications and enable more families to enjoy the festivities.

Many individuals and organizations find it expedient to contribute a sum of money and have the staff of the Community Centre do the buying and distributing. Some give their own contributions to people they wish to remember, but register the name with the Community Centre to avoid duplication. This information is kept confidential.

To make Christmas as natural as possible a Toy Mart is organized so that parents will be able to select toys for their children.

Christmas though it comes once a year is a very important part of the whole life of the family. Recognizing this fact, the Executive Secretary, the case workers and the nurses, whenever possible discuss Christmas plans with the families.

It is hoped that, in spite of the uncertainty and the turmoil in the world in general, through the cooperation on the part of all, Christmas in this community may bring joy and new hope to all.

RETURN TO APARTMENT

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Burke, who have been staying with Mrs. Burke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Spencer, of Rockdale, have returned to their recently renovated apartment at Village Green.

Ease the worries of that Christmas dinner by buying from the dependable merchants who are now advertising in the Media News.

URGE EARLY SEAL RETURN

"In the rush and crush of Christmas shopping do not overlook that one important item — Christmas Seals," urged Dr. W. W. Comfort, President of the Delaware County Tuberculosis Association, today. "Many have these tucked away in corners or desk drawers to be attended to 'later' and too often forgotten," Dr. Comfort continued.

"These bright, gay messages of hope can do their work only if paid for and used to decorate your Christmas mail. In Delaware County last year these Seals enabled our Association to carry out a full well-rounded program and it is our hope that this work may continue uncurtailed.

"It is a source of satisfaction to the committee in charge to announce that the response so far has evidenced whole-hearted cooperation in this enterprise, which is part and parcel of our community life. There are, however, many who have not yet been heard from and it is these we seek to reach.

"So remember — buy Tuberculosis Seals and add health and happiness to your Christmas list. Send your contribution now to the Delaware County Tuberculosis Association, 301 Merchants Trust Building, Chester, Pennsylvania.

A TRIP TO THE VIKING LANDS

By JUDGE A. D. MacDADE

We told him of our personal interest in preserving Swedish traditions and to restore physical monuments marking the original Swedish Settlement in Delaware County, particularly our part in collaboration with the late Governer Sproul in obtaining the placing of Johann Printz's portrait as the first Governor of Pennsylvania in the Executive offices at Harrisburg and the naming of a viaduct at Chester after him. We mentioned also the efforts of our citizens to restore the birthplace of John Morton, who as a Swedish descendant and a loyal patriot of the American Colonies, signed the Declaration of Independence; as well to erect a suitable monument to his memory for such distinguished service while a resident of Ridley Township. This information gave the Crown Prince great pleasure and elicited the statement from him that the greatest regret of his American visit was that his illness prevented his visiting Tinicum Township and Chester to greet the American people, especially those of Swedish and Finnish descent, of whom he had heard so favorably; and especially to witness the exhibition of folk dancing and the hearing of songs characteristic of the Scandinavian Countries, for which great preparation had been made and disappointment followed thereafter when the Crown Prince could not attend as well as the Dedication of the beautiful Finnish Monument in Chester. The interview concluded by the Crown Prince charging us to personally extend to the citizens of Delaware County his sincere regrets in not being privileged to attend in person our local ceremonies because of illness and his best wishes for future happiness and success.

While in Copenhagen, Denmark, we were visited aboard ship by former Ambassador to Japan, Roland E. Morris, of Philadelphia, and from the same place Mrs. Harold E. Beitler and her daughters, while a message of greeting from Anna E. Greenwood, of this city, was delivered to us while aboard the S. S. Gripsolm" in Gotenberg, Swe- Miss Greenwood was a pas- er on the S. S. "Kungsholm," a was returning to America the North Cape.

he ports of Helsingfors, Finland and Stockholm, Sweden, we were interviewed and photographed by representatives of all the leading newspapers in these countries and leading accounts were featured in which our version of the Swedish Tercentenary in America, particularly in Delaware County, was given and our statements were received with great interest by the Swedish and Finnish populace, who were most anxious to see and hear a person from America who had participated in the local celebrations. Pictures of us were displayed in the newspapers and we became an international figure unexpectedly.

Sweden, Denmark, Norway and Finland can be described by us as very picturesque in their scenery, with their lakes and fjords, studded with green isles, giving these countries, especially Norway, attractiveness and genuine charm. In our opinion Stockholm and Copenhagen were the finest cities visited, the one being called the "Venice of the North" and the other "Little Paris." The inhabitants of these cities were particularly friendly and made all very welcome.

I AM HAPPY

And you should be happy when I tell you there will be no advance in the price of HAINES, The Shoe Wizard shoes from now on until late Spring, as I have purchased enough to supply your wants, I am taking a loss of thousands and tens of thousands of dollars in profits, because I am paying more for every pair of shoes, but I believe, that by holding to the prices of 98c, $1.98 and 2.98, we can increase our sales to such an extent so as to offset a portion of the losses. I hope you appreciate this and will tell your friends we are saving you 25c, 50c, $1.00 and even $2.00 a pair on your shoes.
